

Anxiety

When your mind feels like it won't slow down.

You're not alone.
Anxiety is your mind trying to protect you, even when it feels overwhelming.

What anxiety can feel like

It can show up in many ways—racing thoughts, overthinking, tiredness, stomach aches, or feeling on edge for no clear reason.

Remember this

The feeling is real, but it isn't forever. You are more than what you're feeling right now.

Take a moment to reflect

What has been taking up space in your mind lately?

Write it down, draw it, or just notice it.
There's no right or wrong way.

Try this grounding exercise

Pause. Look around. Notice 5 things.

You're not alone

"I used to think I was the only one who felt this way. But talking to a friend and taking small steps helped me feel a little lighter."

— Anonymous

Many young people feel anxious sometimes. Reaching out can help.

What can help?

Talk to someone you trust
A friend, sibling, teacher, or counsellor can help you feel less alone.

Break it into small steps
Take one small step at a time. You don't have to do it all today.

Be kind to yourself
You're doing your best. That's enough.

Talk to Echo
Chat with Echo for support, reflection prompts, and helpful resources.

Talk to Echo

Reminder

It's okay to not have it all figured out. You are still growing.

Anxiety may visit, but it doesn't have to stay.

You are allowed to take your time. You are allowed to ask for help. You are allowed to put yourself first.

