

Loneliness

Feeling alone can happen even when you're surrounded by people.

Loneliness doesn't mean there's something wrong with you. It means you long for connection, understanding and belonging.

It's okay to miss connection. ♡

What loneliness can feel like

Feeling empty even when you're around people.

Wishing someone would reach out first.

Feeling like you don't really belong.

Longing for deeper conversations.

Remember this

You are not too much.
You are not not enough.
You are a human who wants to feel seen, heard and valued.
That's completely okay. ♡

Take a moment to reflect

When do you feel the most alone?
What do you wish was different?

Write it down. There is no right or wrong.

Try this grounding exercise

Notice 5 things around you.

1 thing you can see

1 thing you can hear

1 thing you can taste

1 thing you can touch

1 thing you can smell

You're not alone

"I felt invisible for so long.
Then I realised, I just hadn't found my people yet."
— Anonymous

People care more than you think.
It can just take time to find them.

What can help?

Talk to someone you trust
A friend, sibling, teacher or counsellor can help you feel less alone.

Join something you enjoy
Clubs, teams, hobbies or communities can help you meet like-minded people.

Start small
A simple "hi" or starting a conversation can open the door.

Talk to Echo
Chat with Echo for support, reflection prompts and helpful resources.

Talk to Echo

Reflection prompt

Who makes you feel a little less alone? What do they do that helps?

Small steps you can take today

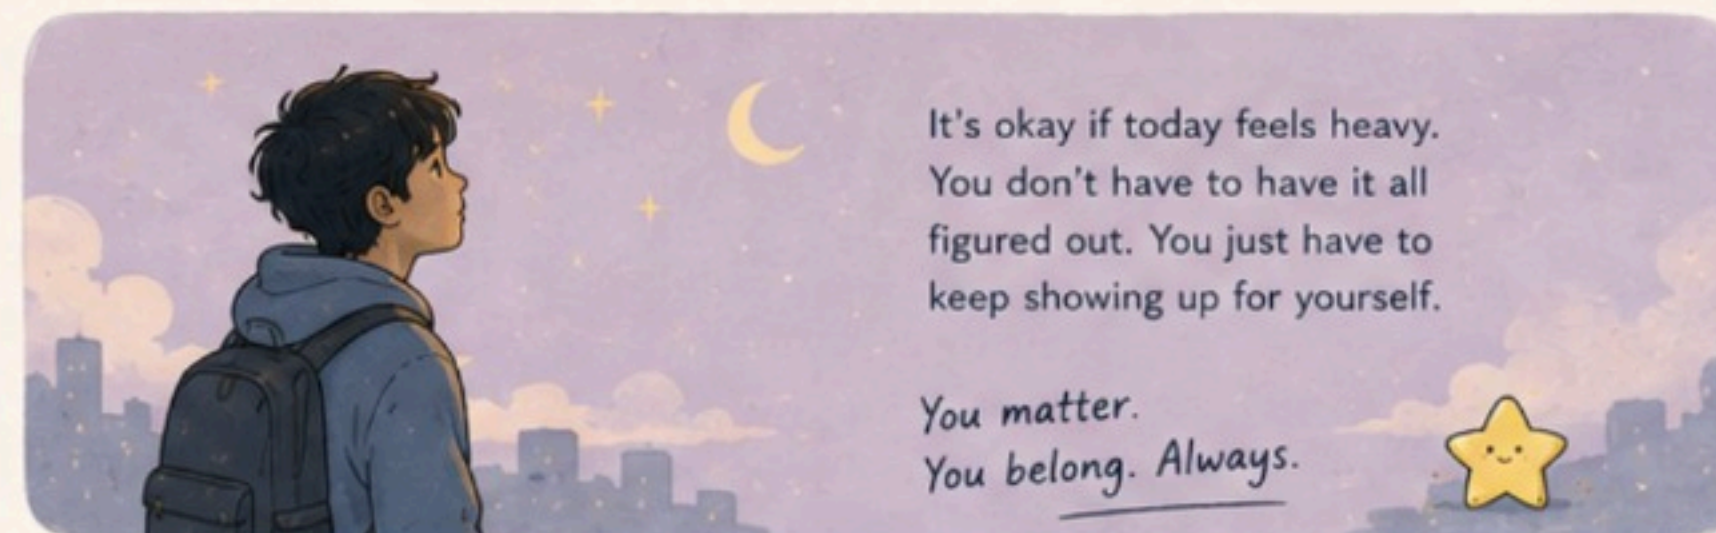

Send a message to someone.

Say yes to one invitation.

Spend a few minutes doing something that makes you feel good.

It's okay if today feels heavy.
You don't have to have it all figured out. You just have to keep showing up for yourself.

You matter.
You belong. Always. ♡

