

SELF-ESTEEM & CONFUSION

It's normal to feel unsure about who you are, what you want, or what you're good at.

★ Confusion doesn't mean something is wrong with you. It means you're figuring things out.

So many versions of me

It's hard to know which path fits me best right now.

Remember this

I don't have to have everything figured out.

Being unsure doesn't mean I'm failing.

★ Proof I Can

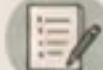

Look back on your journey. Collect moments that prove you're growing.

★ Small choices build self-trust

★ Small steps toward balance

-  Give yourself permission to explore.
-  Talk kindly to yourself when you feel unsure.
-  Try small things without needing to be good at them.
-  Let your interests change. It's okay.
-  Focus on progress, not having it all figured out.

You're allowed to take your time. ★

★ Reflection prompt

When do you feel most confused about yourself?

What would help you trust yourself a little more?

★ Small actions you can try today

Try one tiny thing that curious you.

Write one kind thing about yourself.

Spend time doing something just for you.

Create without caring about being perfect.

Share how you feel with someone you trust.

You are allowed to be a work in progress.

You don't need all the answers to trust yourself.

