

Understanding Emotional Numbness

*Write your thoughts, pause, or talk to a trusted adult whenever you feel ready.
When you feel detached or unable to feel much of anything*

WHAT IT FEELS LIKE

When you feel disconnected from your emotions or find it difficult to feel much of anything. Often, numbness is your brain's protective buffer against sustained overload or distress.

GROUNDING RESET

'Name Something' Grounding Exercise

Instead of forcing yourself to feel, simply notice physical surroundings without judgment: What do I see? What textures are beneath my fingers? What does temperature feel like on my skin? Gently reconnect through physical senses.

Take 3 slow breaths. You do not need to rush or figure everything out at once.
